- 26 -

ABSTRACT

A printing workflow system is utilized for coordinating production of document processing 5   jobs among a plurality of cells, where a cell is comprised of at least one device for completing the jobs. The present invention describes the architecture of such a system, and efficient methods for generating document processing job IDs and two methods for routing and scheduling document processing jobs through the cells.